Hoping to engage the next generation of neurointerventionalists?

Look no further than the annual SNIS/Joint Cerebrovascular Section Fellows Course. Following the SNIS 23rd Annual Meeting in Seattle, Washington, the two-day course provides attendees the opportunity to learn the latest in treatment innovations from experienced colleagues, and equally as important, an in-person forum to network with peers and industry partners like you.

This year's agenda features a broad range of session formats including workshops, presentations, Q&As, and discussion panels, offering multiple visibility opportunities for your organization.

Sponsors will have a chance to showcase their devices in simulated treatment scenarios, giving future attending physicians a one-of-a-kind experience with learnings they can apply in the angio suite right away.

Join us in Seattle at the Fellows Course July 23–24 to build relationships with budding providers and peers while collaborating around innovations that move the field forward, leading to the highest quality of care.
